

D'Alesandro To Address Student Body Loyola YD's Sponsor D'Alesandro Lecture

WORKING EDITORS . . . Bob Johnston, Bernie Vondersmith, Fritz Aumann, Dave Schroeder, Bob Sontoni and Dick Higdon do a "job" on GREYHOUND Editor Pete Mastrangelo as Angie the barber supervises.

Mastrangelo, Schroeder Head 'Greyhound' Staff

During the semester break, the annual changing of the guard took place in the GREYHOUND office.

The new staff, making a smooth transition from the old, find themselves producing a GREYHOUND with some long awaited changes in the paper's format--especially the expansion to five columns and the two-inch increase in length.

The new Editor-in-Chief, Pete Mastrangelo, a junior history major from the Bronx, who attended Salesian High School in New Rochelle, N.Y., has brought with him a broad background in journalism. Through close co-operation with his staff he hopes to improve the paper's standards, which he feels have not yet reached their fullest potential as an effective voice of the student body.

Dave Schroeder, a junior English major who has served the GREYHOUND for three years, continues in his duties as Managing Editor. His main assignment is acting as an assistant to the editor in supervising and coordinating the energies of the staff.

Sports will be handled by Bernie Vondersmith, another junior English major. Bernie is in charge of collecting and reporting all information on the many sports events and personalities.

Sophomores Fritz Aumann and Bob Santoni have the task of reporting all the news events of importance to the student body. Rising to News Editors in just one semester, they share with the new Features Editor, Dick Higdon, a background in high school yearbook experience. Higdon, also a sophomore, is in charge of assigning features articles, and planning the layout for the second and third pages.

Overseeing the literary as well as the journalistic aspects of the paper, will be junior Bob Johnston, Rewrite Editor; while classmate Charlie Cooper acts as Copy Editor.

Photography, which will be of greater importance now that the size of the paper has increased, will be handled by sophomore Dan Whalen. Dan will also serve as Assistant Sports Editor.

The business end of the paper will be handled by two juniors, Jim Eckstein and Mark Fayman. Business Editor Eckstein handles the bills and advertisements, while Mark Fayman, as Circulation Manager, sends out the GREYHOUND to other schools while obtaining heirs in return.

Although the staff is fairly complete, there are still openings.

Seniors Lead School

The seniors lead the list with thirty-two out of seventy-six students. The junior class showed the most appreciable increase. Twenty-three juniors made the list as compared to only ten last year. The above continue to have the privilege of unlimited cuts.

IRC To Feature Pierre Rocheron

M. Pierre Rocheron, Attaché of the French Embassy, has accepted the invitation of the International Relations Club to speak on Wednesday, February 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the student lounge.

His talk will include the policies and standards of France in relation to the current happenings and their influence on world peace and disarmament. Following the lecture will be period for students and faculty members to ask questions.

This lecture is the first of a series that the IRC will hold this semester. During the second part of February a representative from the Department of State will speak at the college. His topic is "The Influence of the Wheat Deal on Soviet-Sino Relations." As yet the date and the name of the speaker are not known.

The IRC of Notre Dame, as in last semester, will attend meetings at Loyola. The response and turnout from our neighbors has been good. Better cooperation between the two schools is the aim of having these joint meetings.

Poetry Contest Response Poor

Father Lavin reports that the response to the poetry contest sponsored by the Catholic Poetry Society of America has been discouraging--to date no poems have been submitted.

All students are eligible to enter, and entries may be given to any member of the English Department in person or through the faculty mailboxes. Entrants may submit as many poems as they wish; but each poem should be on a separate sheet with the writer's name.

The Society annually awards a gold medal on about forty college campuses. The campus winner also receives a year's subscription to "Spirit," the Society's own publication. The winning poem is published in it.

The Young Democrats' Club of Loyola College on Tuesday, February 11 at 3:30 will present The Honorable Thomas D'Alesandro III, President of the Baltimore City Council, who will deliver a major address on the "Problems and Needs of Baltimore City."

Mr. D'Alesandro was raised in the "Little Italy" section of Baltimore and received his elementary school education at St. Leo's Parish school. He received his secondary school education at Loyola High School.

Loyola Alumnus

Upon graduation from high school, Mr. D'Alesandro entered Loyola College. While at Loyola he was a member of the cross-country team and of the GREYHOUND staff. He was graduated from the college in July, 1949 and entered the University of Maryland Law School. After he graduated from law school, Mr. D'Alesandro entered the army and served 3 years as a captain in the Judge Advocate General's Corps.

Mr. D'Alesandro is a member of the Bar Association of Baltimore City and the Junior Bar Association and has been practicing law for eleven years.

Public Offices

In 1958, Governor McKeldin appointed Mr. D'Alesandro to the Board of Elections Supervisors and in 1960 he was appointed the President of this board. In 1963 Mr. D'Alesandro was elected President of the City Council by a 2 to 1 margin. Since he has been in office, he has cooperated exceptionally well with Mayor McKeldin on several major issues confronting Baltimore, such as taxation, civil rights, and urban renewal.

Students attending should gain a better understanding of Baltimore's future internal problems and in relation to surrounding areas.

Loyola Posts 3 Wins In Debate Tournament

Wayne State of Michigan defeated a strong Boston College team in the finals of the Eleventh Annual Harvard Invitational Tournament to capture the team trophy. In the semi-finals Wayne State handed Harvard its only setback and Boston College beat St. Joseph's of Philadelphia.

Loyola posted a 3-5 record. On the negative the team of Keating and Fleming defeated John Carroll Loras (Iowa), and Bates; the only defeat for Loyola on the negative came at the hands of a fine Boston College team. However, a weak affirmative presentation proved to be Loyola's undoing. It dropped all four debates on this side of the argument, losing to Detroit, Western Reserve, Florida, and Newton. Loyola's overall record now stands at ten wins and nineteen losses.

Editorial

'Every Cloud Has a Silver Lining'

Now that last week's "raging snowstorm" has blown itself out to sea, and the fresh high pressure system encircles the Evergreen campus, the new editorial board of the GREYHOUND takes pleasure in predicting its two-semester outlook. In general the forecast calls for fairer presentation of matters concerning the student body as well as for a more accurate appraisal of some of the overcast conditions engendering ill feeling--a climate which often darkens the academic and social skies of Loyola College. As the storm passes over, the editorial board of this paper hopes to bask in the dauntless glow of sincerity and unbiased opinion.

In order to ensure a paper which will be both honest in reflecting student opinion as well as responsible in dealing with the Administration, the staff heads have adopted a new policy which we hope will improve the accuracy and relevance of editorials. The editorial "we" will become a reality. The opinions expressed hereafter will not be merely the convictions of one man, but the collective opinion of all the editors on the GREYHOUND staff. In carrying out such an editorial policy, the opinions expressed shall have the benefit of coming from a more universal--and therefore more appropriate--source.

In addition to the new editorial policy, we hope to make the content of the GREYHOUND more concentrated to the general interests of the student body. This policy will be effected by several measures: first, through an expansion of size; second, through the inclusion of features which will focus on the various entertainment spots in the Baltimore-Washington area; third, through the encouragement of constructive criticism concerning campus issues by the students.

As the masthead below these editorials states, "The GREYHOUND is a publication by and for the students."

Hound House

By Bernie Vondersmith

What kind of a basketball team do we have at Loyola? Last weekend a dozen Hound Hoopsters threw off their patriotism and in the process shook off a pressuring American University team by one point. Having de-feathered the American Eagle, the Hounds went hunting again on Saturday night and shot down the Hopkins' Blue Jays, who think they have a basketball endowment also. Very many of our opponents have stood head and shoulders above us, in experience as well as stature. We have come close to putting down the big ones. The biggest remains for tomorrow evening when a bus will literally roll in from the western reaches of Maryland. The reek of the equestrian odor of a one-horse town may seep from the bus. The people on this vehicle, when placed in uniforms and handed a basketball, act like a team, a fairly large team.

Last Year

Reiteration of what happened in Emmitsburg a few weeks ago is unimportant. Mount Saint Mary's remains a towering opponent. Last year, Marty Maher's last-second layup in the Mount gym won the honors of the evening. At home, Charlie O'Donnell ran Mahoney in circles and aided the Hounds in a ten point decision. A table turn is not impossible, and fan support does not go unrealized or unappreciated. In the din of court confusion the stands seem to be the source of the loudest noise. Students and their cheering and jeering are second only to the excitement of the action on the court.

Go home today, ask your mother for the combination to the safe, and then, dig for the dusty little book of free basketball tickets. Tear off your free ticket to the Mount game. With your ticket and your date find a nice, romantic spot in the South stands and answer the drawling, banjo-picking cacophony which arises in hillbilly haven--the North Stands. All kidding aside, this is a very important game which carries a tradition with it that is decades long. Evergreen gym is usually filled for the occasion and interest becomes more exciting when a strong group of Loyola students sardine themselves in the middle of the South stands.

Happy Hound Weekend Closes Semester Break

Through the hot shooting hands of an aroused Billy Morris and Loyola's dynamic little junior guard, Marty Maher, the Hounds came surging from behind in the final four minutes to slip past a pesky American University five, 77-76, before a sparse crowd at Evergreen last Friday evening.

With A.U. sitting on a 74-66 lead and 4:03 to go, Morris crammed in eight straight points to earn a 74 deadlock with 2:30 left. When A.U. quickly moved back on top, 76-74, Maher's push shot netted the count with 1:50 to go.

A.U. put the freeze on, but lost possession with 44 seconds left. Alex Cummings was then fouled on an attempted drive with 13 seconds to go, but A.U.'s hopes for victory were re-lit with Alex sunk only one for a 77-76 lead. Jack Townsend's desperation shot fell off the rim at the buzzer.

Maher had a game high of 21 points, while Cummings and Morris chipped in with 16 and 14 respectively. Center Mike McCarthy, who ignited rallies with several key baskets during the rough sledding in the second half, finished with 14 points. McCarthy hit back to back baskets with A.U. leading 68-60 to keep Loyola close.

Loyola vs. Hopkins

On the following night the Hounds took on Hopkins at Homewood and came out on the top end of a 50-48 score. Lawrence, Maher, and McCarthy each netted 10 points in this tilt. The Hounds had their hands full from the opening tap-off to the final buzzer. The scoreboard at the half found Hopkins up by one counter, 28-27.

No more than five points separated the two squads throughout the entire contest as the lead changed hands several times. Marty Maher once again displayed evidence of his value to the Hound hard court team by tossing in the two winning charity tosses.

Focus On Sports

I'M AN ELITE MAN:

Sports

By Dan Whalen

Tommy Milligan, in June, of this year, will leave Loyola, but his outstanding athletic career will remain behind him. Athletic talent is not an overnight accomplishment, and, for Tommy, only arduous workouts and practice have paid off with success.

At Southern High Tom spent his fall seasons as a fullback. His efforts there gained him the McCormick Unsung Hero Award. After the football season Tom moved on to the wrestling mat. As a high school grappler Milligan gained local honors by placing second in the M.S.A. tournament in his senior year. As a lacrosse player, Tommy left Southern with a berth on the All-Maryland team.

Tom at Loyola

Talent has not been wasted at Loyola. Tom gained a starting berth on the wrestling team in his freshman year, and Charlie Wenzel welcomed his defensive stick handling in the same year, as his lacrosse abilities began to show. He has wrestled for four years and twice captured second place in the M-D Wrestling Tourney. Last spring Tom was given an honorable mention on the All-Maryland lacrosse team. Unfortunate circumstances have set in, however, to add a shadow to the senior English major's athletic career. Chronic shoulder trouble has put Tom on the disabled list for the rest of the wrestling season and he will be out for the entire lacrosse season also. Upon reception of his B.S. degree in English Tom plans to begin his teaching career, and we would not be surprised if he makes his debut in the coaching circle.

Intramurals

By Phil Pierpont

Exams are over and a few of the intramural teams are missing a player, or two; however, most of the teams were ready and waiting for some hardcourt action which resumed this week.

As of this issue there are six undefeated teams, while the Moms and the Hummers are two games behind the others. The winner of the Moms-Hummer game will take on the Finks. The survivor of this later game will challenge the Mavericks. The Porky-Pigs and the Polar Bears are the remaining undefeated squads and are scheduled to face each other this week. The result of this game will depend on the accuracy of the spotty rim clearing of both the junior and the senior squad.

Predicting the outcome of the Bear-Pig game would be risky. Both teams are quite strong and both have been impressive in their earlier games. The Pigs have shown the best scoring punch in routing the Nuthins and Far-Tars. On the other hand, the consistency of the senior Polar Bears should stand them in great stead. In defeating the Sharks and Rebels, Charlie Cherry and "Soup" Campbell have averaged in double figures. Bob Rossi, Gene Lacy, and Buzzy Lucas have been the Pig mainstays--on both offense and defense.

Whoever does win may be academic, because they will meet the Mavericks, and many regard that talented senior quintet as the season's choice. Intramural basketball as well as Varsity is a spectator sport and costs nothing but time to view.
